WELCOME TO AUSTRIA!

We are so very glad to welcome you to this year's Austrian Wine Summit, Vineyard Interfaces in the Heart of Europe! Although each Wine Summit is unique, this one feels very special to me, as it fulfils a longtime dream of mine: to pay a dedicated visit to some of Austria's best vineyards – specifically, those that lie at the borders of our country; these borders that never were borders until after 1918. New lines of demarcation were drawn then, which abruptly divided excellent terroirs, leaving the parts in separate countries and leading to a century of widely divergent development, governed for many decades by essentially adversarial political regimes.

Now that our neighbouring countries live in freedom together with us as members of the European Union, it's high time to check up on what has happened wine-wise since the 1980s, on both sides of these borders.

At the beginning of your itinerary, you will assemble in Vienna with your colleagues from the other Wine Summit groups, for a day's conference dedicated to the history of Austrian wine. In the evening, we will all celebrate with a casual Heurigen party, and thus get your visit with us underway in a convivial and congenial spirit.

Your itinerary will then lead you from the Austrian-Czech border in the winegrowing region Weinviertel via the imposing Baroque palace Schloss Hof near the Slovakian border and the winegrowing regions Neusiedlersee, Mittelburgenland and Eisenberg – all adjacent to Hungary – to Vulkanland Steiermark, bordering on Slovenia. Accredited specialists will elucidate the historical development of each border region, while wines from our Czech, Slovakian, Hungarian and Slovenian friends will accompany you throughout your visit.

In doing this, we hope this year's Wine Summit will be able to help transform our nation's borders into interfaces: vineyard interfaces in the heart of Europe.

10 Austrian Wine Types

Type 1: Perlweine & Sekte

Austria can look back on a venerable tradition of sparkling wine, one that dates back to the 19th century. Our specialists in the sparkling sector include private producers, as well as large Sekt houses. Whether Sekt g.U. at the Klassik level or the traditionally vinified pétillant naturel (Pét Nat), these wines are ideally suited not only to the classic role of apéritif but also prove their versatility as dinner-table companions. Fruit and refreshment share the foreground in these easily drinkable light sparklers (Perlwein) and Sekts.

Type 2: Sekt Méthode Traditionelle

Traditional bottle fermentation is the most time-consuming and costly process for making sparkling wine: it takes a lot of time, and the typical ‘riddling’ of the bottles during ageing is often performed by hand. Austria’s top products – especially Sekt g.U. Reserve and Grosse Reserve – are produced according to this method. The result turns out as characterful and highly elegant Sekts, which do not need to fear any international comparisons.

Type 3: White wines - classic & refreshing

Classic white wines from Austria get top marks for their freshness and fine acidity – which they combine with considerable elegance in a middleweight frame. These can be found in all our winegrowing regions: refreshing and regionally typical Grüner Veltliner & Riesling from the regions along the Danube River, delicious Wiener Gemischter Satz DAC, classic Weissburgunder & Chardonnay from Burgenland or spicy Welschriesling & Sauvignon Blanc from the Steiermark. Youthful wines such as Junger Österreicher, Steierrischer Junker or Junger Wiener are the first to appear on the calendar in the classic & refreshing category, and can be tasted soon after the harvest.

Type 4: White wines - powerful & opulent

These stars of Austrian white wine culture are vinified dry, exhibiting body and extract, opulence and concentration. In addition to the majority of classically elaborated wines, here you will also find wines matured in barrique with a bit of an international accent. Among the elite one finds single-vineyard wines vinified from Grüner Veltliner and Riesling (like Smaragd bottlings from the Wachau), and top wines from regions along the Danube or from the Weinviertel. Other very distinctive vinous personalities include robust Zierfandler and Rotgipfler from the Thermenregion, as well as complex Weissburgunder and Chardonnay from Burgenland. This category is rounded out by the great single vineyard wines from the Steiermark (Sauvignon Blanc, Morillon, Weissburgunder & Grauburgunder), as well as specialties such as Neuburger, Roter Veltliner and the Gemischter Satz from Vienna.

Type 5: Rosé wines

Rosés are produced in all winegrowing regions of Austria and assume many forms: charming, youthful wines from Burgenland, or fresh stylings vinified from Zweigelt and Sankt Laurent in Niederösterreich, all the way to racy Schilcher from the Weststeiermark (some designated as a regionally protected Weststeiermark DAC). Burgenland also has its own protected appellation of origin for fruity-fresh and spicy rosé wine: Rosalia DAC Rosé.

10 Austrian Wine Types

Type 6: Red wines - classic

Red wines in the classic style – with élevage either in large wooden cask or steel tank, with typical Austrian fruit but also plenty of depth, without being too high in alcohol – which express the typicity of their origins, with elegance and an inviting nature. Zweigelt plays an important role, since it grows quite happily in almost all viticultural regions – though Carnuntum comes up first here – and classically vinified Blaufränkisch can also be convincingly distinctive. This group is rounded out by specialties such as Sankt Laurent, Blauburgunder (Pinot Noir), Blauer Portugieser & Blauburger.

Type 7: Red wines - intense & opulent

These are red wines that possess opulence, concentration, complexity and depth, vinified either as single varietal wines or as cuvées. Even with aging in barriques, these top wines are characterised by the typical depth of fruit characteristic of their terroir. The premiere destination for red wines of this sort is Burgenland – although top red wines can also be found coming from Carnuntum, the Thermenregion or even Vienna. It is satisfying to note that our typical Austrian grape varieties such as Blaufränkisch & Zweigelt might even do just a bit better here than classics like Pinot Noir and the international varieties Cabernet & Co.

Type 8: Alternative wines

A precise definition of ‘Orange Wines’, ‘Artisan Wines’ or ‘Natural’ wines – often referred to collectively as ‘Alternative Wines’, does not exist. What they have in common, however, is that they often develop as far as possible without human intervention during their process of becoming wine. Owing to oxidative development and/or extended maceration time, the white wines will also develop a distinct tannin structure – and even some colour from the skins – in combination with fresh acidity and earthy fruit. Growers who produce exceptional wines in these new – or actually old – ways can be found in all of Austria’s winegrowing regions.

Type 9: White wines - off-dry & medium-sweet

Wines in the upper Spätlese or Auslese class rank among the most ageworthy wines in Austria. In their youth they exhibit a great deal of finesse, combined with supple residual sweetness and a lively interplay between fruit and acidity. The palette ranges from Muskat Ottonel or Welschriesling from Burgenland, via (Gewürz)Traminer from the Steiermark, Grüner Veltliner and Riesling from various winegrowing regions, to the great Spälesen or Auslesen vinified from the specialty varieties Zierfandler and Rotgipfler in the Thermenregion.

Type 10: Nobly sweet wines

These include Beerenauslese and Trockenbeerenauslese, as well as the classy and refined Ruster Ausbruch. These rare sweet wines are characterised by ample residual sugar and highly concentrated acidity, usually in conjunction with the distinctive aroma of noble rot (Botrytis cinerea). Such wines continue to develop in an exciting way over a long period of time and have great ageing potential – and Austria plays here in the Champions League. Eiswein with expressive, luxuriant fruit and sizzling acidity – as well as Strohwein and Schilfwein, which exhibit flavour profiles between Botrytis and Eiswein – also belong to this category.

"An active spirit gets a footing everywhere." The Life and Times of Austrian Grape-Breeder and Viticultural Modernist Friedrich Zweigelt (1888–1964).

Dr. Daniel Deckers

The grape variety "Blauer Zweigelt" is by far the most important newer cultivar for the wine industry in Austria. It is named – like Müller-Thurgau or Scheurebe – after its respective breeder, Steiermark native Dr. Friedrich Zweigelt (1888–1964). Born three decades before the collapse of the Habsburg Monarchy and living until almost twenty years after the end of the Second World War, Dr. Zweigelt was more than just a witness to the political and economic upheavals of the first half of the 20th century. His life and his work also became a mirror for the ideological continuities and fractures of that epoch.

As a pan-German nationalist and anti-clerical-minded resident of a border state, the PhD zoologist Zweigelt – who in 1912 entered service at the Imperial & Royal Instructional & Research Institute for Viticulture & Pomology at Klosterneuburg, near Vienna – did not mourn the passing of the monarchy. In the 1920s, Zweigelt, now head of the state vine-breeding station, became the most powerful and internationally best-connected viticulturalist in the First Republic. It was quite natural that Nazi Germany figured as an object of aspiration for Zweigelt after 1933 – among other things, the viticultural policy of the National Socialists was far and wide the most progressive.

With the "Anschluss" of March 1938, whereby Austria was assimilated into Nazi Germany, Zweigelt's dream seemed set to become reality, imagining "his" Klosterneuburg as a sister to the much larger state school for viticulture and the like at Geisenheim am Rhein. But however much Zweigelt, as head of the school and then (1943) director, endeavoured to mould Klosterneuburg into a stronghold of National Socialism, he found himself caught between the various fronts and intrigues of NS rule and bureaucracy.

After the collapse of the Third Reich, Dr. Zweigelt's machinations as director were addressed with a trial in Peoples' Court, though in 1948 left to obscurity through an act of grace. Friedrich Zweigelt never returned to public service. Pupils and friends of the vine grower set a monument to multifaceted life's work by renaming an extremely promising new red crossing after him, while he was still alive.

Austrian Wine History – An Introduction

Prof. Dr. Karl Vöcelka

The long history of viticulture in Austria presents many facets: soils and climate, winegrowing regions and wine towns, grape varieties and vinification techniques, trade and taxation, the ritual role of wine in religious practice and the pertinent customs in Austria. Aspects of the historico-cultural context of wine – including its spirit of pleasure and literary characterisations – must be accorded attention comparable to considerations regarding the education of young winegrowers. Both disciplines can claim a history extending from the endeavours of Archduke Johann (1782–1859) to the recent expansion of a number of educational and research institutions. The marketing of wine with its latest developments – keyword "organic wine" – is an important aspect, as is addressing sensitive issues such as the 1980s wine scandal or anatomising relevant events of the National Socialist period.

The book, "Wine in Austria: the History" was created as a collaborative effort between many scientists and practitioners of viticulture. For the first time, the exciting story of Austrian wine is recounted in a single work of impeccable authority, examining the positive developments behind the rise of this special beverage to the impressive status it now enjoys in both domestic and international regard.

The effect on viticulture and on wine consumption created by the collapse of the Habsburg Monarchy in 1918 and by the drawing of new borders following the Treaty of Saint-Germain-en-Laye in 1919

By Michaela and Karl Vöcelka (Article from: "Wine in Austria: The History")

The end of the First World War in 1918 produced profound consequences for Central Europe, affecting every sphere of activity within the region, ranging from high-level political decisions to the everyday lives of the inhabitants. The outcome of the "great seminal catastrophe of this (20th) century" (George F. Kennan) had long-term consequences, which endure to the present day. The Second World War of 1939–1945, the Cold War that persisted in Europe until 1989, as well as the creation and expansion of the European Union are all inseparable from developments that occurred during and immediately after the Great War. A significant influence was also exerted – in an international context – on viticulture in Austria, which provides us with our current subject. This was brought about by a new world order of nation states, including the establishment of the Republic of German-Austria on 12 November 1918, on territory formerly ruled by the Habsburg Monarchy.

Although the dissolution of the multinational Habsburg Empire had begun before the end of the war, a final line was not drawn until two peace agreements were concluded in the Parisian suburbs in 1919. The borders of the new Republic of Austria were set out in the Treaty of Saint-Germain-en-Laye on 10 September 1919.¹ The country's border with Hungary was established by the subsequent Treaty of Trianon in 1920.² The victorious powers forbade the planned union with Germany and prohibited use of the name German-Austria. Many of Austria's German-speaking areas now came under the rule of neighbouring countries.

The new demarcation in Central Europe, which caused Austria's borders to be redrawn and conceded territory to adjacent states, also had an impact on viticulture. This issue was, however, accorded very little consideration at the time. Article 227 of the Treaty of St.-Germain, for example, makes only one explicit reference to wine. It states that Austria "is obliged to respect any law defining or regulating the right to any regional appellation concerning wine or spirits" and that "the importation, exportation, manufacture, distribution, sale or offering for sale of products or articles bearing regional appellations inconsistent with such law or adjudication shall be prohibited by the Austrian Government."³

The peace agreements concluded after the First World War gave rise to the division of Tyrol. The southern part of the state (today South Tyrol or Alto Adige) was awarded to Italy despite the fact that most of its population was German- or Ladin-speaking, meeting a demand laid down by Italy when it entered the war on the side of the Entente Powers in 1915.⁴ Austria thus lost one of the monarchy's traditional winegrowing regions. Wine production in the Vintschgau, in the area surrounding Meran/Merano, in the Überetsch district, in the environs of Terlan/Terlano, near Lake Kaltern, in the Eisack Valley and in the Bozen/Bolzano region supplied (and continues to supply) high-quality white wines (Pinot Grigio, Chardonnay, Weissburgunder, Sauvignon Blanc and Gewürztraminer). There are also fine reds (indigenous grape varieties include Vernatsch and Lagrein; Kaltererseer and St. Magdalener are well-known wines).⁵

Although claimed by the SHS-State (the Kingdom of Serbs, Croats and Slovenes) and despite the fact that it was partially inhabited by Slovenes, "Unterkärnten" (Lower Carinthia) remained with Austria following a plebiscite which took place on 10 October 1920.⁶ However, since there was virtually no viticulture in Kärnten at the time, this border issue is of no significance to our presentation.

The demands made by the SHS State regarding Styria turned out to have a far greater material influence on winegrowing. The disputed region was and remains home to a number of important wine villages (which are nowadays located in Slovenia) such as Jeruzalem, for example, which was founded by knights returning from the Crusades in the 13th century. It is situated between winegrowing regions surrounding Friedau/Ormož and Luttenberg/Ljutomer, which were already well known and highly prized prior to 1918. Gorca, which lies around sixty kilometres to the south of the Austrian-Slovenian border, is one further well-established wine village in Štajerska Slovenija, where Furmint and Sauvignon Blanc are the favoured varieties.⁷ Today, Slovenia produces around one million hectolitres of wine, two thirds of it white.

The so-called "Untersteiermark" (Lower Styria) – the area between the lower part of the Mur River and the upper stretch of the Save – was lost by Austria to the SHS State (from 1929 Yugoslavia) as a result of the Treaty of St.-Germain.⁸ Although the region was largely inhabited by Slovenes, German-speaking populations predominated in towns such as Marburg/Maribor and Pettau/Ptuj. Because ethnic divisions had proved to be extremely unclear and an approach based on national principles could not be adopted, watersheds were initially used to define borders. Indeed, the same procedure was also followed with regard to Italy. "The intention, therefore, was not to use division according to language to create a political border. The confluence of the two languages did not permit any line to be drawn that was appropriate to the actual situation. Wherever such a border was created, some landowners would find their property located on both sides."⁹

Some municipalities, such as Glanz, Leutschach and Schlossberg, were initially claimed by and awarded to the SHS State. The crucial determination was made in August 1919 and involved "painstaking work on a farmstead-by-farmstead basis [...] to define the border in all places where it was not delineated by the River [Mur]. Many dramatic – and frequently traumatic – family stories are told about this border demarcation."¹⁰

About 30,000 hectares of vineyards formerly located in Styria were ceded to the

The Drawing of New Borders after 1918

SHS State as a result of the division of Austria and Slovenia.¹¹ However, many Styrian winegrowers also possessed vineyards on the other side of the border. During the inter-war years, the high import duties placed on agricultural products provided a particular challenge for these dual owners. In the Second World War, Slovenian Štajerska was once again designated as "Untersteiermark" by the National Socialist rulers. Slovenian names were Germanised in an attempt to create cultural hegemony. 50,000 people became forced labourers, and many Slovenes living in the region were murdered in concentration camps.¹² Understandably, the prevailing mood at the border after 1945 was less than cordial. Nevertheless, contacts between residents and winegrowers on both sides remained intact. Weingut Dveri-Pax, located near Luttenberg/Ljutomer in the Drava Valley/Podravje in the northeast of Slovenia, has a particularly long tradition of relations with Styria. This estate has its origins in Jähringhof Manor, which was bequeathed to the church by the nobleman Rudolf Wittenswald between 1130 and 1135 and was later awarded to the Benedictine Monastery of Admont by the Bishop of Salzburg. Its vineyards in the regions of Maribor, Jeruzalem, Radgona and Kapela, which have been expanded to cover approximately seventy hectares by acquisitions made over the course of the centuries, are all in modern-day Slovenia. Nevertheless, production still takes place in accordance with the Admont tradition, and the wine is marketed by the monastery.¹³

The fact that cross-border viticulture remained largely possible was also determined by the prevailing situation at the border, which was different in many respects from the circumstances at the Hungarian border that will be described in detail below. In 1949, Yugoslavia broke away from the Eastern Block under the leadership of Tito (Josip Broz 1892–1980) and began to pursue an "independent route" towards socialism. The consequence of this for our study is that Slovenia's border with Styria became a partially permeable – if heavily guarded – barrier, rather than an impenetrable Iron Curtain. The Gleichenberg Agreement of 1953 provided an important step forward in this regard by solving the problem of "dual owners" with possessions on both Austrian and Yugoslavian soil. Restitutions to 400 Austrians and 50 Yugoslavians were made on the basis of this treaty.¹⁴ It permitted dual landholders, who then comprised some fifty growers with an area of approximately 53.4 hectares under vines, to process imported grapes in Austria and to label the final product as Styrian Qualitätswein. No changes were made to this agreement following the end of communism and Slovenia's accession to the EU in 2004. In 2015, however, a demand was made that wine made from Slovenian grapes should be labelled as "Wine from the EU" and that traditional Styrian bottles should no longer be used. In 2014, the Lower House of the Austrian Parliament hurried to anticipate a decision by drawing up a draft resolution proposal that would continue to provide contractual certainty for the "use of the Styrian brand and approval number for wine produced from Slovenian grapes".¹⁵ The issue was indeed discussed by Parliament, but any decision was ultimately postponed in a meeting on 4 May 2016.¹⁶

Greater success in resolving the matter was achieved at the ministerial level. As early as 2003, work began to collect data on dual owners. This produced a list of 260 names across all spheres of agriculture. The "Winegrowers" Association of Styrian Dual Owners was founded in 2012. This body was commissioned by the Federal Ministry of Agriculture, Forestry, the Environment and Water Management to draw up a register of all dual owners and their parcels in Slovenia. It worked in conjunction with the Slovenian Minister of Agriculture and the EU Commission to develop a proposed solution for a "cross-border protected designation of origin for Styria". This suggestion was, however, rejected by Styria's Regional Wine Committee, and even the reaction of the EU Commission was sceptical. The ministry then joined forces with the Slovenian Ministry of Agriculture in 2016 to present an agreement creating the designation "Transfrontier Varietal Wine".¹⁷

At the same time, the "right of dual owners to indicate historic dual Styrian-Slovenian ownership on labels" was enshrined in Austrian Wine Law.¹⁸ Styria's Chamber of Agriculture designed a logo for this purpose, which has been available to dual owners since the 2018 harvest (current vintage).

Upon receiving a further enquiry, the European Commission offered no possibility that the protected designation of origin "Steiermark" could be used with respect to the individual status of parcels involved. It did, however, express contentment with the model "Transfrontier Varietal Wine".¹⁹

A number of examples will now be presented to illustrate the situation. The winegrower Martinecz possesses vineyards both in the area surrounding Klöch in Styria and in the winegrowing region of Gornja Radgona in Slovenia. Both harvests are used to vi-nify white wines (Welschriesling, Weissburgunder, Muskateller and "Heckenklescher" ["Uhudler"]).²⁰ The vineyards of Weingut Silly in Gabersdorf, which has long been a family enterprise, are located on both sides of the border: in Plač in Slovenia in the area bordering Steiermark, and on the Südsteiermark Wine Trail. Since 2009, the estate has also owned vines on the Grassnitzberg in Styria.²¹ Weingut Luttenberger in Seibersdorf has vineyard sites in Police/Pöllitschberg in Slovenia. From 2016, new parcels have been planted in Lang in Styria, in the Leibnitz district.²² The wine estate in Mureck run by Jakob and Elias Dorner is also worthy of mention, among the many growers who pursue transfrontier viticulture. Their vineyards are actually located only a few kilometres from Mureck on the other side of the banks of the River Mur in Neuberg/Novi Vrh in the Windische Hills.²³

As briefly mentioned above, the border drawn with Hungary after 1918 was of a different nature than the demarcation with Slovenia. On 22 November 1918, the Provisional National Assembly of the newly formed republic laid claim to the western Hungarian and primarily Germanophone municipalities of Pressburg/Pozsony, Wieselburg/Moson, Ödenburg/Sopron and Eisenburg/Vas, which according to the legitimization "belonged to German-Austria geographically, economically and nationally".²⁴ In the Treaty of Trianon, an agreement between two nations that had been on the losing side in the war, this area was separated to become Burgenland, the ninth Austrian federal state. On 14 December 1921, a plebiscite was held in the region surrounding Ödenburg/Sopron and eight neighbouring municipalities. The manipulated results saw 72.8% of voters in the town itself opt to become Hungarian. Despite the fact that the remaining eight jurisdictions voted to be part of Austria, the whole area was subsequently ceded to Hungary.²⁵ This meant that the border between Austria and Hungary was not finally settled until 1921. The social and personal consequences for the population were, however, slight. A lively trade in smuggling mitigated the impact made by the new dividing line.²⁶

Individual measures were instigated during the period of uncertainty that preceded the final determination of the border, even while disputes with Hungary were still unresolved. Some of these proved favourable for winegrowers in the newly emerging federal state, whereas others were less advantageous. On 30 March 1921, for example, the Hungarian Government under Horthy altered the arrangements relating to viticulture tax. This was raised to 84 Kronen per hectolitre, and severe fines were provided for failure to report wine quantities. Nevertheless, this ordinance was only to affect the growers of Burgenland for a short period of time.²⁷ On 4 August 1922, over a year later when the situation had been stabilised, an agreement was reached regarding the gathering of the harvest (including grapes) for the Austrian districts of Jennersdorf, Güssing, Oberwart, Oberpullendorf, Mattersdorf, Eisenstadt and Neusiedel and in the Hungarian counties of Zala, Sopron and Moson. This determined that a "permit [...] [is] not required for the export of these products".²⁸

Although internal trade links with significant winegrowing regions in the Hungarian part of the monarchy, such as Ödenburg, Villány, Kunság, Eger and Tokaj-Hegyal-

ja, were lost following the redrawing of the border, the acquisition of Burgenland meant that Austria also gained a number of important viticultural districts. During the time of the monarchy, the territory of the present Burgenland still belonged to the Kingdom of Hungary and seemed to offer good benefits as a winegrowing region. Writing in 1889, the oenologist Robert Schroer stated: "Good wines are commercially available at not too high a price in the winegrowing region Neusiedlersee. There are even white wines of the very best quality – we will mention the wines of Rust, especially Ruster Ausbruch, one of Hungary's finest wines". The author continued, "One thing that causes great damage to the wine trade is that the winegrowers drink a good proportion of their wines themselves."²⁹

Ownership of wine estates in West Hungary/Burgenland was dominated by the nobility – although they tended to show little interest in viticulture – and by the "royal free cities" of the Hungarian crown (Ödenburg, Eisenstadt, Rust). 93 out of 2,798 communities were involved in the production of wine. These were organised into four quality categories. Wines from Ödenburg and Rust belonged to the first class. Second class producers were found in Oggau, Gschies (an old name for the municipality now known as Schützen am Gebirge), Oslip, St. Margarethen, Deutsch-Kreutz, Mörbisch, St. Andrä am Zickensee, Eisenstadt and the Esterházy estates, Neckenmarkt and in the villages of Győr-Moson county that were ceded to Hungary – Kroisbach/Fertőrákos, Holling/Fertőboz and Wolfs/Balf (today a district of Sopron). Nine of the twelve winegrowing communities included in the top two classes thus became part of Austria.³⁰ Fifteen of the nineteen wine villages in category three are now located in Burgenland. These are Steinbrunn (formerly Stinkenbrunn), Gross-Höflein, Klein-Höflein, Loipersbach, St. Georgen am Leithagebirge, Breitenbrunn, Purbach, Trausdorf an der Leitha (formerly Trauersdorf), Klingenbach, Haschendorf, Grosspetersdorf, Nebersdorf and Lutzmannsburg. Burgenland is even more significantly represented amongst the forty-eight winegrowing areas in the fourth class (some of which are no longer identifiable). Only eleven of these became part of Hungary. Those remaining included Hornstein, Wimpassing, Leithaprodersdorf, Müllendorf, Zillingthal, Neudörfl, Pötttsching, Wiesen, Forchtenau, Mattersdorf, Walbersdorf, Pöttelsdorf, Rohrbach, Marz, Siegendorf, Zagersdorf, Wulkaprodersdorf, Krensdorf, Zemendorf, Drassburg, Baumgarten, Schattendorf, Ritzing, Kobersdorf, Gross-Zinkendorf, Schützen am Gebirge, Stoob, Raiding, Unterfrauenheid, Steinberg-Dörfel (once two villages), Oberloisdorf, Frankenau-Unterpullendorf, Kloster am Spitz in Purbach, Mannersdorf an der Rabnitz, Strebersdorf, Kroatisch Geresdorf, Kroatisch Minihof, Nikitsch, Oberzagersdorf and Unterzagersdorf. The significance of this wine region was also underscored by the presence of two vine nurseries in Ödenburg, operated by the wine merchant Samuel Boor and by a winegrowers' cooperative, offering eighty-nine different grape varieties.³¹

The drawing of new borders could, however, not occur without conflict. One well-researched example is the history of the villages of Luising and Hagendorf. The original intention was that Luising should be ceded to Hungary, irrespective of the fact that its inhabitants were Germanophones. The two villages had close ties in many respects, shared a school and church, and a separation would have placed a large number of fields and vineyards on either side of the border. After much to-and-fro the decision was made that Luising should also become part of Austria. According to Article 29 of the Treaty of St.-Germain, the complicated provisions set out for the final demarcation of the Austrian frontier were to be monitored by an internationally staffed boundary commission. The Hungarians attempted to use a letter of reply contained within the Treaty of Trianon to influence placement of the border-line in their favour.³² To some extent, the Luising conflict was a precursor to (or part of) the struggle between Hungarian guerillas and the Austrian "B-Gendarmerie" to gain control over Burgenland.³³

Once the border had been drawn, the situation for Austrian citizens was highly disadvantageous. An Austrian wishing to travel to Hungary was required to pay a visa fee that was between six and seven times higher than that charged to a Hungarian headed to Austria. Hungarians with land-holdings in Austria could also import their produce to Hungary without any requirement to pay duties, while Austrians were charged duty on their goods by the customs authorities.³⁴

Improvements to the structure of the wine industry took place in Burgenland during the period following 1922. Instead of the wide range of Hungarian grape varieties, attention now shifted to the production of quality wine. This trend was strengthened by the establishment of a viticulture college in Rust in 1933. Areas under cultivation also quadrupled between 1912 and 1936.³⁵

Burgenland was not merely important to winegrowing in Hungary during the period of the monarchy; a significant part of the wine trade and the export business also passed through the region. A particular role was played in this regard by Eisenstadt and the Wolf family, who resided in the town. This family (originally called Austerlitz) originated from the Jewish community in Vienna. They had arrived in Eisenstadt in the late 17th century, where Joachim Austerlitz decided to adopt his middle name Wolf as a new surname. Joachim also established Weinhandlung Wolf, which was later to gain renown as the wholesaler Leopold Wolf's Söhne. The company exported Hungarian wines to metropolitan Vienna and to other lands of the Crown such as Bohemia, Moravia and Silesia – and in the latter not just to the Austrian part, but the Prussian part as well. It also traded with southern Germany. In addition, the Wolf family earned a great deal of money from exports to France when the catastrophic outbreak of phylloxera caused a scarcity of supply around 1880.³⁶

The most significant member of the family lived to see the creation of Burgenland and remained highly active in the wine trade thereafter. Sándor Wolf (1887–1946) was also a noted art collector and came to prominence as the founder of the Burgenland State Museum, to which he gifted the former Leinner Building in the Rusterstrasse in Eisenstadt, along with his entire collection, which by 1930 comprised some 6,000 objects. Sándor Wolf was forced to flee in 1938 because of his Jewish origins and went to Israel, where he died in 1946, whilst planning his return home.³⁷

The Iron Curtain, which was later to descend on Austria's eastern border and prevented any kind of small-scale international interaction, was to have a far more extreme effect than the slightly porous demarcations that were drawn up post-1921.³⁸ The climate of the Hungarian winegrowing region bordering on this physical barrier, which was named after the town of Ödenburg, is influenced both by the Pannonian Plain and the heat reservoir of Lake Neusiedl. 1,900 hectares of vineyards were under cultivation during the period of the socialist dictatorship. Both red wines (Blaufränkisch, Cabernet Franc, Cabernet Sauvignon and Pinot Noir) and white wines such as Grüner Veltliner, Sauvignon Blanc and Chardonnay were produced within the scope of a centralist planned economy. Naturally, most sales took place in the East. After the fall of the Iron Curtain in 1989, joint concepts were developed for the marketing of high-end wines. The main parties involved were cooperatives in Deutschkreutz, Horitschon, Lutzmannsburg and Neckenmarkt and the State Winery in Sopron, Hungary.³⁹ Just two examples of the joint ventures entered into by Hungarian and Austrian wine producers will be cited at this point.⁴⁰ The Garger family, who are descended paternally from Grossdorf/Vaskeresztes in Hungary, cultivate vines from the Hungarian part of the Eisenberg to produce a Blaufränkisch called Nador (in Latin, palatinus regnie Hungarie), first released with the 2013 vintage.⁴¹ Weingut Weninger is based in Horitschon in Mittelburgenland, where its biodynamic viticulture yields primarily red wine. In 1992, the Weninger family joined forces with the Hungarian winemaker Attila Gere to found Weingut Weninger & Gere in the winegrowing region Villány. Output is 80,000 bottles of red wine per year, 80% of which is sold in Hungary.

The Drawing of New Borders after 1918

A further estate was set up in a prime location in Balf, part of Ödenburg, in 1997 under the name of Weninger & Pincészet . 60% of the 80,000 bottles produced there is sold in Hungary, while the rest goes to Austria, Germany and Switzerland.⁴²

In comparison to Styria and Burgenland, the borders redrawn in 1919 exerted only a small influence on winegrowing in Lower Austria. The border demarcation in the north of Lower Austria between the federal state and Czechoslovakia, which was declared independent in the USA on 18 October 1918 and founded in Prague on 28 October 1918 (considered to be a victor country), reflected the historic borders of the Kingdom of Bohemia without according due consideration to ethnic issues. This meant that German-speaking minorities remained in the Republic of Czechoslovakia.⁴³

In almost all cases, the border demarcation was shifted and established in favour of Czechoslovakia. The village of Schrattenberg near Poysdorf, for example, lay directly on the new state border. However, winegrowing on the frontier was pursued primarily for personal consumption and was not materially affected by the new situation. Similar circumstances regarding the way in which vines and grape varieties (mainly white wine) were cultivated prevailed in the border zone between Moravia and Austria. Operations were dominated by municipal viticulture (Retz in Austria and Znaim/Znojmo, Nikolsburg/Mikulov and Auspitz/Hustopeče in Moravia) as well as by a great number of small growers. Nevertheless, cultivation of fruits and vegetables had been supplanting viticulture, which had become unprofitable in the area, more and more ever since the 19th century. This meant that implications for oenology in the neighbouring Austrian region were minor.⁴⁴ However, the drawing of the border frequently brought significant losses in its wake for small farmers on the Czechoslovakian side whose market was located in Austria. By the same token, the Austrian side also lost its most important agricultural training facility in Feldsberg/Valtice.⁴⁵

In this area too, the long interruption of contacts at the border did not come to an end until the Iron Curtain was raised in 1989. Relations were normalised following the accession of the Czech Republic and Slovakia to the European Union in 2004. The same process took place with regard to Hungary and Slovenia, and more joint projects were initiated. These simultaneously provide symbols for the international linking of trade and industry in general and the wine sector in particular, within the framework of the European Union.

WIEN (VIENNA)

Vineyard area: 637 hectares

Principal grape varieties: Gemischter Satz

Important large collective vineyard sites:
Bisamberg-Wien, Nussberg, Kahnenberg, Maurerberg

The vineyards in the Austrian capital city have an important economic and cultural status. The multiplicity of styles yielded by its 637 hectares ranges from Wiener Gemischter Satz (the classic field blend) through Grüner Veltliner and Riesling to Weissburgunder, Chardonnay and some excellent red wines. Vienna is especially proud of its romantic wine taverns called "Heurigen", which are loved by both locals and tourists alike.

HEURIGER – A VIENNESE INSTITUTION

The real Viennese Heuriger (wine tavern), in which only Viennese wines are served, is identified by a bunch of pine branches and by the word "Ausg'steckt" written on a board, which simultaneously shows when the tavern is open. However, the word "Heuriger" does not just describe the tavern itself, but also the wine from the current vintage. The tradition of the Heuriger goes back to 1784, when Emperor Joseph II granted every individual the privilege of selling or serving "foodstuffs, wine and cider they have produced themselves at all times of the year, when and at whichever price they choose".

FUHRGASSL-HUBER

© Fuhrgassl-Huber

In the 1970s, Ernst Huber and his wife Gerti constructed their new winery building, and with it at the same time completely reinterpreted the concept of the Viennese wine tavern ("Buschenschank"). With its diverse spaces and splendid garden, the Fuhrgassl-Huber Buschenschank soon developed into the hallmark of typical "Viennese conviviality".

Since 2014, Weingut Fuhrgassl-Huber has been a member of the "WienWein" group and since 2018 belongs to the "Österreichische Traditionsweingüter" as well.

Today, young winegrower Thomas Huber has a consultant at his side in the form of grandfather Ernst Huber, who knows every centimetre of the Vienna vineyards, and planted many of the vines with his own hands more than thirty years ago.

Their wines range from classically light regional wine to the profound single vineyard wines that are harvested from the best sites in Vienna. The greater part of their holdings are located at Neustift am Walde, in the city's district of Döbling.

Thomas Huber has a special fondness for old grape varieties such as Neuburger and Roter Muskateller.

At present, of the total thirty-five hectares under vines, a full fourteen hectares are used for Wiener Gemischter Satz DAC. The estate has already won the Vienna State Competition five times with its Ried Mitterberg, and presented their Gemischter Satz on several occasions as representative of Vienna in the SALON Österreich Wein.

As the next step in quality, Weingut Fuhrgassl-Huber will expand its range of wines with protected designation of origin to further highlight the distinctive characteristics of the individual vineyards.

WEINVIERTEL

Vineyard area: 13,858 hectares

Principal grape variety: Grüner Veltliner

Leading viticultural towns: Röschitz, Retz, Haugsdorf, Falkenstein, Poysdorf, Herrnbaumgarten, Wolkersdorf, Mannersdorf

Austria's largest specified winegrowing region (13,858 hectares) is home to a wide range of varieties, but Grüner Veltliner stands out. These wines have a strong regional typicality characterised by a marked spicy, peppery nose. In 2003, Grüner Veltliner from the Weinviertel was the first Austrian wine to be granted DAC status.

The "Kellergstetten", a charming district in Poysdorf of historic and unique monastery cellars, is home to the "World of Sparkling Wine". Everything that you ever wanted to know about sparkling wine can be found here, spread out over a total of four floors. This is where knowledge, passion for collectibles and love of Sekt come together in perfect harmony.

In the attic, one finds not only an impressive roof structure – here, true craftsmanship can still be admired – but also a collection of sparkling wine coolers and glasses from the past century. In addition – not to be overlooked – there's one of the largest sparkling wine glasses in the world. A mouth-blown masterpiece.

Observation Point "Three Countries" Schrattenberg-Valtice

The village of Schrattenberg lies directly at Austria's border with the Czech Republic, where until 1989 the Iron Curtain divided the nations. To stimulate the border region and create economic opportunity, the transfrontier "Barefoot Path" from Schrattenberg to Valtice was created.

Good surfaces for walking, eleven diverse stations, lovely rest areas and many scenic views make this trail special. One can enjoy an impressive panorama of the border triangle of Austria, the Czech Republic and Slovakia from the viewing platform.

HISTORICAL INTRODUCTION: "The Austrian-Czech Border and Its Implications for Vineyards and People"

The region around Poysdorf has been border country for centuries. The provincial border with Moravia during the Habsburg Monarchy became a national border after 1918, then after 1945 was gradually transformed into an impenetrable barrier – an "Iron Curtain" secured with partially electrified barbed-wire, patrolled by border guards from a group of watchtowers. Thus, relationships that had developed over decades were severed. For example, most of the princely Liechtenstein family's vineyards now lay on the other side of the border and were expropriated, so that the region's largest viticultural concern was obliged to make a new start with the land that remained in Austria. The winegrowers' school in Feldsberg/Valtice was left inaccessible because of the Iron Curtain. Wine marketing, until then usually conducted through the autonomous organisation of individual growers, required a new strategy. A wine-production cooperative was founded by growers from the major viticultural communes in the border area, among others from Poysdorf, Falkenstein, Herrnbaumgarten and Schrattenberg. In its heyday some 550 growers, especially smaller ones, delivered their grapes to the co-op. At the end of the 1950s, they began to "conquer" the Austrian and international wine markets with their own branded products like the "Poysdorfer Saurüssel".

Despite the sharp decline in small estates, the area under vines in the region remained relatively stable even after the opening of the border in 1989. With the Weinviertel DAC, a new and revitalised opportunity for sales has evolved in recent decades.

Poysdorf & Sekt:

In the 1870s Robert Schlumberger, founder of famous Sekt producer, came in search of worthy base wines for his "champagne" in the region around Poysdorf, which lies at the same latitude as Champagne. Even today, Schlumberger is one of Poysdorf's top purchasers of base wines. In 1890 the wine merchant Kattus, then official purveyor to the Habsburg court, began to produce sparkling wine. This firm also sources its base wines largely from the Poysdorf area. Supplying base wines for Sekt – especially in the decades when the Iron Curtain isolated the region economically – represented an important source of revenue. In the 1980s, however, regional sparkling wine production began to develop. Thus, the Poysdorfer Viticultural Cooperative brought its "Winzersekt" on the market, which was produced until 1997. Today, several local wine estates produce their own Sekt.

This family establishment is located in the picturesque wine village of Herrnbaumgarten, only 5 km from the Brünnerstrasse, which runs between Vienna and Brno. The newly-opened Gasthaus "Zum Doppeladler" (the Double Eagle) combines modern ambience with old-fashioned elements.

The inn in its present form was built in 1909 by the town of Herrnbaumgarten. The old structure standing in the same place was demolished and the splendid new building erected.

The Hlavacek family has been operating the inn as a tenant since December 2016.

Together with their team, they prepare classic Austrian and modern European cuisine for their guests.

SCHLOSS HOF PALACE

© Schloss Schönbrunn Kultur- und Betriebsges.m.b.H. - Hertha Hurnaus

A stately palace, an ornate terraced garden and a tranquil estate with trails for discovery form an ensemble that combines imperial pomp with country idyll in a unique way. Even during the era of Prince Eugene, Schloss Hof was renowned far and wide for its magnificent balls. This tradition continues to be preserved by the opulent amenities and an abundance of events that cater for the whole family.

Following the restoration of the Maria Theresa and Emperor Joseph II apartments to their original beauty and the meticulous restoration of Prince Eugene's original furnishings, the palace's ceremonial rooms now bask in the same splendour as when they were first designed by the greatest artists of the epoch.

Back in the 18th century, the baroque garden was an even greater source of admiration than the palace itself. Still to this day, the artistic broderie flower beds, hedge groves and richly adorned fountains serve as an idyllic retreat to while some time away. Prince Eugene's orangeries – two technically and architecturally imposing greenhouses flanked by gardens – also bear witness to his great passion for plants.

HISTORICAL INTRODUCTION:

"Schloss Hof Palace in Its Historical Context, from the Great Commander Prince Eugene to Today's Touristic Attraction"

The two hunting and pleasure palaces Schloss Hof and Niederweiden are located not only close to the Slovakian city of Bratislava – for a long time the "alternate capital city" of the Kingdom of Hungary, during the long decades that the central wedge of the country was occupied by the Ottomans – but also near the Danube flood plain, which was then an important hunting ground. The great "Austrian" general Prince Eugene of Savoy began building these magnificent baroque palaces in 1725, which passed to his niece after his death and ultimately were sold in 1755 to Emperor Franz I (Franz Stephan of Lorraine) and his wife Maria Theresa.

At the end of the 19th century, as noble enthusiasm for the hunt had shifted to the mountains, Emperor Franz Joseph handed over the premises to the military. In the aftermath of 1945 the palaces were inhabited by the occupying Soviet forces and fell into terrible condition. But by means of careful attention, the old beauty of the castles and the baroque garden has been restored in recent decades and made attractive once more for events (Christmas market, spring festival etc.) and exhibitions (most recently about Franz Joseph and Maria Theresia).

HISTORICAL INTRODUCTION: "The Bridge of Andau and Its Significance during the Hungarian Uprising of 1956"

© Steindy

About 10 kilometres distant from the border town of Andau in Burgenland, a small narrow bridge – more precisely, a footbridge – crosses the Einser Canal, which constituted the border between Austria and Hungary. Until the end of World War II, this bridge served local farmers bringing products such as wood or hay from neighbouring Hungary, or travelling to cultivate the fields and meadows. With the advent of the Iron Curtain, this light local border traffic was suppressed.

At the outbreak of the Hungarian uprising in October 1956, the little bridge was brought into focus with the international public. When Soviet troops violently suppressed the uprising on 4 November 1956, hundreds of thousands of refugees sought to find a way into Austria. As the borders became increasingly impermeable, the path through swampy Hanság to the bridge at Andau – even as it was blown up by the border authorities – became one of the last possibilities for getting out of Hungary. Between 70,000 and 80,000 refugees ultimately came across the border at Andau before the escape routes were finally sealed off in March 1957.

This little spot on the map became a media star when US Vice President Richard Nixon visited Andau in December 1956, and the American writer James A. Michener immortalised the "Bridge of Andau" in his eponymous novel.

The Bridge of Andau became an emblem of freedom and, in Austria, symbolised the legendary unbureaucratic and spontaneous help given by aid organisations, private individuals and the young Austrian state, which had just recently become independent in 1955.

Principal grape variety: Blaufränkisch

Leading viticultural towns: Neckenmarkt, Horitschon, Deutschkreutz, Lutzmannsburg

The dominant variety in the 2,104 hectares of vineyards in Mittelburgenland is Blaufränkisch. Its distinctive aroma of black forest berries and fine nuances of spice that develops on the warm, loamy soils, give Mittelburgenland DAC its regionally typical character. The grander reserve wines have enormous potential for maturating.

THE SCHAFLERHOF

© Schaflerhof Hans Igler

The Schaflerhof was built under Esterházy rule (from 1676) around 1700 for the purpose of sheep farming, as a part of the economy of nearby Deutschkreutz Castle. Originally, Deutschkreutz Castle had been the political and cultural seat of the Nádasdy dynasty, until the Esterházy family took over both castle and sovereignty, beginning to develop it into an agricultural estate in 1671.

Around 1800, sheep farming reached its peak under Esterházy rule before declining in the middle of the 19th century. As a consequence, the Schaflerhof was converted to meet the requirements of cattle and dairy farming. Up to the Second World War and during the Soviet occupation, the estate was kept in operation. At that time, families from Deutschkreutz lived on the premises.

In 1957, the estate was purchased by the municipal government of Deutschkreutz and then sold to the famous Austrian artist Professor Anton Lehmden in 1966. Later, in 2004, the Reisner-Igler family acquired the property, beginning a year later to undertake maintenance, renovation and reconstruction, conducted throughout the following years.

Since then, the Schaflerhof, which established itself in a short period of time, serves not only as retail space but also as a storage facility for more than 600 casks. Moreover, it offers a unique atmosphere for wine tastings and wine-oriented menus, and functions as event venue for up to seventy people, combining modern architecture and historic ambience.

HISTORICAL INTRODUCTION: "The Austrian-Hungarian Border and Its Implications for Vineyards and People"

If one allows the eye to wander from the observation deck on the 415 metre-high Eisenberg, across the wooded hills of Burgenland to the edge of the Alps and far into the Hungarian plain, the distinctive and self-contained landscape of the Pinkaboden, the countryside around the River Pinna, is certain to catch the viewer's attention. This extremely asymmetrical valley – extending toward Hungary over terrain so flat that it can almost be perceived as a plain – has always existed as a topographical entity in which people have traded, married and lived together in neighbourly harmony for centuries, even though Hungarian, German and Croatian speaking villages lay mixed side by side with one another. Only the unfortunate border demarcation between Austria and Hungary imposed upon the region in 1921/22 disorganised this common cultural and economic area, often contrary to the will of the inhabitants.

After the Second World War, the advent of the Iron Curtain added further complications to the picture, separating people from each other for nearly forty years, almost completely disrupting personal and economic relationships in the process.

Economic distress – especially in the inter-war period, which led to massive emigration to America – two world wars, the expulsion of a large part of the German population from the Hungarian villages in 1945–1947, and the general loss of freedom nearly drove the inhabitants to despair. Especially in Austria, young people saw little chance for the future on the "dead" border and fled to the cities – primarily to Vienna –, which led to dramatic aging of the rural population.

Today one sees not a trace of the former Iron Curtain, with its barbed wire, minefields and guard towers. On the 21 December 2007, the day finally arrived that people in Pinkaboden had waited years and decades for. The barriers on the border between Burgenland and Hungary were demolished and all frontier controls eliminated. Thus began a new chapter for people around the Eisenberg, who suffered for many decades under the intransigent fist of armed conflict.

VULKANLAND STEIERMARK

Vineyard area: 1,524 hectares

Principal grape varieties: Welschriesling, Weissburgunder,
Sauvignon Blanc, Traminer

Leading viticultural towns: Hartberg, Fürstenfeld, Kapfenstein,
St. Anna am Aigen, Klöch, Straden, Bad Gleichenberg

Here there are many little wine-islands on the flanks of the extinct volcanoes that give their name to the winegrowing region. With 1,524 hectares of vineyards, these volcanic soils bring forth wines with a distinct, individualistic character. Regionally typical wines from Vulkanland Steiermark are permitted to carry the designation "DAC". The three-tier system of origin comprises "Gebietswein" (regional wine), "Ortswein" (local or "villages" wine) and "Riedenwein" (single-vineyard wine). The localised diversity of the region reflects the leading varieties on all three levels.

SCHLOSS KAPFENSTEIN

Schloss Kapfenstein sits high up in the Styrian volcanic landscape, deep in Vulkanland Steiermark. Built on a dormant volcanic cone, the fortified castle – dating from the 11th century – has defied countless attacks from the Huns, Turks and Kurucs. The first recorded evidence of Schloss Kapfenstein dates from 1065. Over the years, the fortification has witnessed an eventful history; the estate and its lands were finally passed onto the Winkler von Hermaden family in 1918.

Today, the erstwhile fortification with its small family-run hotel and restaurant is the perfect place for a romantic getaway, holiday, culinary experience, peaceful retreat or for celebrations. The best wines from the family's own winery accompany the restaurant's dishes. The third-generation family-owned 40-hectares of vineyards are cultivated organically. Several dining rooms and castle terraces, with magnificent views overlooking the hills of the Vulkanland Steiermark, provide a spectacular backdrop for many an occasion. Not only is the castle rich in history, but it can also be a source of inspiration and a place of relaxation.

HISTORICAL INTRODUCTION: "The Austrian-Slovenian Border and Its Implications for Vineyards and People"

The historic re-drawing of national borders significantly shaped both the economy and everyday life in the area of Bad Radkersburg and along the River Mur. Life had not been easy during the last decades of the Habsburg Monarchy. Most families lived off their own hard labour in the grain fields and vineyards. The steep hills in the areas north of the Mur (Klöch and environs) or south of the Mur (around Kapellen in today's Slovenia) rendered agricultural work even more strenuous. Following World War I, after 700+ years of existence, the Duchy of Steiermark was split in two: the north became what we know today as Austria's federal state Styria and the southern area was incorporated into the Kingdom of Yugoslavia (after the year 1989 Yugoslavia split in different states, this region lies today in Slovenia). During the interwar period the former transit region – with its railroad providing a connexion to easternmost Styria – became a cul-de-sac at the new border, suffering from seasonal emigration and rural depopulation. After the end of World War II, one looked across the border to communist Yugoslavia. Nevertheless, the present image of the so-called "Thermenland" relieves memories of the troublesome living conditions that prevailed in the past. With the support of the Styrian provincial government, the Bad Radkersburg area slowly but steadily began to prosper. A package of measures, coupled with the arrival of non-local tourism, helped improve living conditions in the border region. It is important to note: the current well-known success story of Styrian wine stands solidly and indisputably behind any economic upswing.
